The name Athy dates back to the second century when Ae the son of Dearthabhail, fosterer of Eochy Finn, was slain in a battle between the men of Munster and the men of Leinster. The battle was fought at a Ford on the river Barrow hence called Ath-Ae, the Ford of Ae, which was later anglicised into Athy. Included in this holiday is a visit to Avoca the beautiful village setting for the TV programme Ballykissangel and a visit to Kildare and the Irish National Stud, Japanese Gardens, St Fiachra's Garden and the Horse Museum.
